DOYLE

At dusk on a summer's evening in the year 795, a sinister-looking high-prowed ship ploughed into the sands at Lambay Island just north of Howth Head on the east coast of Ireland. Immediately from the hull, the oarsmen rushed to the monastery of Saint Columille, manhandled the monks, snatched all the gold and silver vessels they could find and disappeared into the sea as quickly as they had come. The Irish Annalists, referring to the incident, describe the unwelcome arrivals as 'dubh-ghaill', i.e., dark strangers, presumably an allusion to their dark and swarthy features. Before long, permanent Norse settlements became a feature of the Irish landscape. Because of their concentrated wealth, parts around the great monasteries, like Glendalough, County Wicklow, and Clonmacnoise on the Shannon, were especially favoured areas for such settlements. So it is that families of the name Doyle, descendants of the settlers just mentioned, are particularly numerous in counties Wicklow, Wexford, Dublin, Carlow and Tipperary. To-day the name ranks twelfth in the list of most numerous Irish surnames.

As early as 851 one Dubhgilla, son of Broden, is mentioned as king of Idrone in County Carlow. From that time onwards, it is an interesting exercise to trace the development of the name in the calendars of Irish records. We instance the following as examples: — O Dowill, Dowyll, O Dowile, O Doule, O Douell and Dowell. All are clearly forms of 'dubh-ghaill' mentioned above.

The Doyles organised themselves exactly like the other Irish clans. Their war-cry, 'Rillole Abú', refers to a hill of that name, near the present town of Ardlow, where they assembled for war. The old Gaelic motto associated with the family — 'Bhí mé, beidh mé' — is probably in reference to the stag's head in their crest and shield; the stag has always been regarded as the symbol of permanence and endurance. Despite the ravages of man and time, this prince of animals is still a strong force in the mountains of Wicklow.

A small resume of the Doyle History

In the early 800, Norse settlements came to Ireland, because of the great wealth in of some of the south eastern counties. The name Doyle are the descendants of these settlers. The name now is the twelfth most numerous name in Ireland. Our people came out of Longford County. At this time I am at a loss to say when or where, but I am working on it. All I know is my grand father Thomas Emmett Doyle, son of Thomas Emmett Doyle, left Ireland during the great potato famine and came to America: date unknown and port of entry unknown. Hearsay has it he first went to Colorado and then came to Newark Ohio. This was about 1850. Thomas Emmett Doyle married Bridget Noonan on February 4 1856 and now Bridget Noonan became a Doyle and her family, the John Noonan family became potential grandparents, and uncles and aunts and as such were also a part of the Doyle family. I will here give a very slight history of the Noonans. They came from County Clare Ireland in 1849. Hearsay has it John Noonan had the title of squire in Ireland. He and his wife Bridget Rogers Noonan had thirteen children seven of which came with their parents to America. The Noonans probably landed in Boston, because they first lived, for a very short time, in Mt Pelier Mass. and then they came to Newark Ohio. The ages of the children were (1) Eliza 19 (2) William 15, (3) Bridget 9 (4) Kate 4 (5) Ann 3 (6) Michael 2 and (7) Honora Infant. Census 1860 John Noonan listed as a gardener. Later he had a dairy. He died in Newark Ohio April 7, 1888 see obituary notice elsewhere and more complete history of John Noonan family.

Thomas & Doyle and Bridget Doyle had a family of six children. Three girls and three, so far as I ever knew or heard. Although the census of 1870 also lists a Lewis age 11. That is the only time I ever heard or saw anything to suggest an other son. The other six children were Susie born in 1857, Teresa born in 1858 William born in 1860, Mary born in 1862 John born in 1867 and Thomas born in 1874.

In what years I do not know, but the family had a bakery and restaurant on the Canal in Newark Ohio, and they served the travelers on the boats that traveled the Canal. Later when the railroads came and the canal was not being used, the family built a house with a grocery store on the rear end of the lot at 352 W Church at which was on the corner of Church and 11th St. which they operated for years. As to the children, Susie married Mike Kelly from Sandusky Ohio and they had five daughters, one of whom died at fourteen months. The name was Blanche. The others Kate, Alice, Grace and Florence none of whom ever married. In 1913 the Kellys moved to Washington D.C. The second child Teresa, staid single, and cared for the grocery store. William never married and was working on the B & O railroad when he got a broken back and was paralyzed from the waist down. He lived only a few years and died in 1898.

Mary married Albert Hauskuly in 1895.
He was a railroad engineer. They had three sons Albert, Paul and Walter.

The family lived in Canton Ohio.

John Doyle married Gertrude Hewitt and they had one daughter Grace.

Thomas Emmett Doyle married Mary Desfont of Chicago Jet Ohio. They had 8 sons and a foster daughter. Emmett, Francis, Harry, Harold, Robert, Infant Thomas, and another infant, and the foster daughter Ruth. Harry died very young at about 2 years and the infants only lived a few days. At this writing only Tom and I are left out of the name and this is the year 1981

This is just a resume of some of the highlights of the Doyle's. I would suggest each of the next generation of the Doyle family make a resume of their own family and send it to each other so everyone will be up to date. Lets keep in touch and pray for each other.

Traditionally, until 1922, Ulster included the counties of Donegal, Monaghan, and Cavan, which are now in the Republic. Northern Ireland, commonly referred to today as Ulster, is a province of Great Britain.
